WOMAN LIQUOR SELLER FINED $100 BY MAYOR

Maximum Penalty Imposed Under New Ordinance on Mrs. Anthony Vorasst.

ANOTHER ASSESSED $50

Third of Defendants Discharged on Recommendation of Chief of Police Murphy Because of Insufficient Evidence. Large Crowd at City Hall.

Of the three persons arrested last Saturday night on charges of selling liquor in violation of a new ordinance, one was fined $100 by Mayor C. J. Mitchell this morning. Another paid $50 as a fine and a third was discharged because of insufficient evidence.

Mrs. Anthony Vorasst, 17 West Peach street, paid a maximum fine of $100 under protest. The money had previously been left as a forfeit. The case will likely be appealed to the courts. Tony Roberts of 305 West Crawford avenue was discharged because of insufficient evidence. The third person, Rosie James, also was discharged. She was fined $50 for a $100 forfeit previously posted.

The hearings attracted a large crowd of men which filled the court chambers. The cases had been twice postponed and some of the interest had abated.

There were three witnesses in the case who testified they had purchased liquor at the Peach street place. They were Nick Veloski of Pittsburgh, Johnson Schrock of Connellsville Township and Nick Marge of Pennsylvania. They were arrested in the house at 12, evening the warrant was served on the proprietors.

At the hearings, they testified to receiving the liquor exhibited at the Peach street address. Mrs. Vorasst offered no defense but pleaded guilty. Tony Roberts was called and questioned by Veloski brought out that the liquor in a bottle exhibited at the hearing was not purchased from Roberts but from a man named Hildeko.

Asked to state the circumstances of the case, Veloski said he and his buddy, Nick Marge, had given Hildeko $225 with which to buy the liquor. The man, whose name was not given, went in to the store and returned with a bottle of liquor. The witness said Hildeko then came into his own place a motorcycle shop, and handed him the drink. Hildeko admitted this fact on cross examination by Attorney Duggan.

Veloski said he and Marge had been in the store previously but had had only pop to drink. Attorney Duggan accused him of endeavoring to purchase liquor there on the date this was asked.

Asked if he knew what was in the bottle he replied:

"Yes, moonshine."

Following the giving of testimony, Chief Murphy recommended that the man be discharged on insufficient evidence. His forfeit of $100 was returned.

Crowd Expected At Dawson Races This Afternoon

A banner crowd was expected at the Dawson track this afternoon for the second day of the spring race meet. The racing on Tuesday afternoon demonstrated that the Dawson track is in the second heat of the first race yesterday, stepped his third quarter in 27 1/2, which is wonderful time for an entrant in the 200 yard race.

Opening day at Dawson was attended by a much larger crowd than was anticipated and the racing was well received by close finishes and fast time.

There will be three races this afternoon in the first one being called at 2 o'clock sharp. All the boys leading at Dawson are in excellent condition no doubt existing for the first time in the last three years.

Nirala's Orchestra with Miss Grace Nelson, soprano soloist, started their Tuesday night. Miss Nelson's first number placed her prominently in the money races of Tuesday afternoon's crowd. She is a wonderful singer and exceptionally liberal with well selected encores.

COMMERCE BODY SHOWS UP WELL FIRST MEETING

ROAD EXTENSION URGED

S. Silex Presents Proposal That Every Foot Be Used to Have State Continue Improvement of Springfield Pike; Aid For Hiemen Asked

The first meeting of the newly organized Commerce body, a body which grew out of a movement to have broad roads bettered and now can do a possibility as one of the most important factors in the progress of the county, was held Friday night at the Carnegie Library. Attendance was good, a complete success, especially in that more than 100 persons were present. All officers and practically every committee chairman were present. Reports of activities undertaken by the body were made.

The treasurer's report by G. Fred Blomquist showed that of $2,393 received from membership dues only $41.28 had been expended leaving a balance of $2,351.72 on hand and membership still to be paid by only 75 persons.

The roads committee is active. A. H. Silex reported. One of the projects before it is to get the State to award a contract for five miles of highway beginning at the end of the present improvement on the Springfield pike. A plan proposed that the commerce body the Kiwanis Club and automobile clubs cooperate in placing signs directing motorists towards Connellsville.

The members heard the need of $150 to defray expenses to the annual convention, scheduled for West Hill, N. Y. in August. This need was met by the body by Mr. C. C. Mitchell, who represented himself as being in the business men of the town, the expense especially the firemen retained from blinding carnivals here because it was their wish.

Going on record as being opposed to a "mystery" the mayor declared he would not stand in the way of such a committee. If the mayor could not be secured otherwise, he called attention to the fact that an ordinance permits the weekly shows to come here.

A short talk beneficial of boosts for the organization was made by At. Norton, R. Norton, who approved the policy of the club in handling all matters carefully and slowly before returning on them.

Activities of the publicity committee, which has already purchased stickers for backs of envelopes of members mailing correspondence out of the city were explained by G. J. Poole, the chairman.

Through the organization members will be protected from fake collectors. These persons will first have to secure a permit from Secretary A. B. Norton, Jr. and they will only be issued after a thorough investigation of the agent's proposition has been made.

The next general meeting of the commerce body will be held Thursday, September 7. There will be more during July and August, although the office of Secretary Norton in the first National Bank will be open at all times.

Men Who Attack Juniata Workers Hide Behind Masks

It was concluded at a hearing this morning before a derision J. J. Mitchell of Uniontown of the cases of four men who were alleged to have attacked two miners at Juniata Tuesday night that the attackers were masks to hide their identity. Nine men were in the party, it was testified, but because of their wearing handkerchiefs over their faces it was impossible to identify them.

They lay in ambush until the workmen came along on their way to work and then at the point of revolvers ordered them to return to their homes, it was testified.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"PEACOCK ALLEY" presents Mae Murray. It is a ravishing, dancing Mae Murray presentation with all the glamour, elegance and splendor which mark the blonde star's offerings on the screen. It pictures the romance of a famous Parisian dancer who falls in love with a small town American youth and then finds that his home folks will not accept her because she has been a dancer. The couple go to New York, but in the end come thick and fast upon the two who, for a while, find life a very dry affair.

As the dancer in this colorful production, Mae Murray scored with the finest bit of characterization she has ever done. She is supported by a notable cast headed by Monte Bue as the youthful husband and this screen favorite brings to the part all that genius for which he is noted. Others in the cast were Edmund Lowe, W. J. Ferguson, Anders Randall, William Tooker, Howard Lang, William Frederick, M. Durant and Jeffery Lewis. "Peacock Alley," presented by Robert Z. Leonard, is by Edmund Goulding from a story by Ouida Beaton.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday William Desmond will be seen in "Eight in a Row."

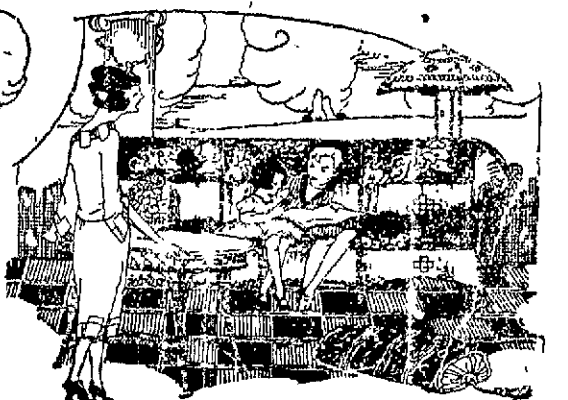

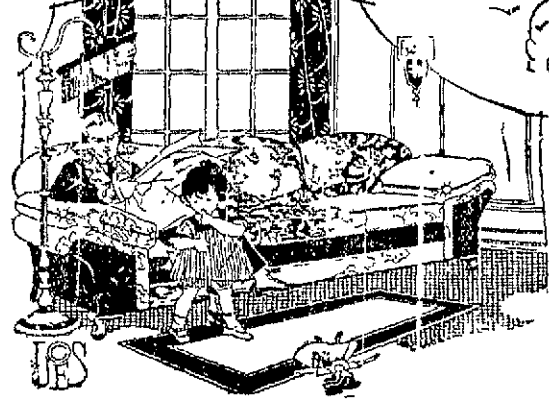

THE PARAMOUNT.

"HIS BACK AGAINST THE WALL" a Goldwyn picture, presents real cowboys. Many of the best character players of the screen may be seen in support of Raymond Hatton, who has the leading role in this new kind of western picture. He plays the part of a coward who has to prove himself a hero. In the end his love for a girl makes a hero of him. In the meantime he undergoes all the pangs of four known to man or beast.

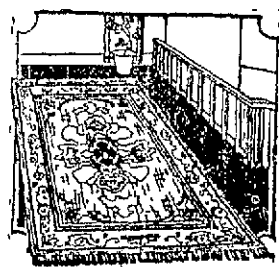

The fun in "His Back Against the Wall" begins in the first reel and continues to the end of the last. In his presentation of the hero who is a coward at heart, Raymond Hatton has the excellent support of a cast of players who have earned lasting reputations on the screen. Among the many artists who appear in the new Goldwyn picture are Virginia Valli, Virginia Madison, Will Walling, Gordon Russell, W. H. Blalock, Fred Kohler, Jack Curt's, Shannon Day and Louis Morrison.

SHOW GIRL TAKES ACETIC ACID IN SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Taken to Mount Pleasant Hospital Little Worse, Apparently.

COMPANIONS ARRESTED

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, June 28.—Yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock Ethel McDonald, 21 years old, giving her address as Lafayette avenue, Toledo, O., was admitted to the Memorial Hospital here for treatment. She had drunk acetic acid, it was said, in a barber shop in the East End. The girl's condition was not considered serious.

According to the police two girls the one who drank the acid and another who did not give her name, and three young men from Mount Pleasant were entertained in the barbershop of Mike Costabile in the basement of the Spaulker Building when the girl drank the acid, which Costabile kept about the shop as a remover of warts.

Chief of Police Robert Smith arrested the five and sent the girl to the hospital. Costabile, as proprietor of the place, was asked for a $25 forfeit which he left. The other men each left $10. The girl was taken to the lockup. After being in the lockup for five hours, members of the Smith Greater United Shows, of which the two girls claimed they were members, appeared at the lockup and posted a forfeit for the girl. The quintet were charged with disorderly conduct by Chief Smith.

"Taniae is certainly a boon to suffering humanity and I would not exchange the good health I enjoy since taking it for all the world," declared Mrs. Kathryn Looney of 318 West DuPont street Philadelphia, Pa., recently.

"Before I took this medicine my ailments had become so numerous and distressing that I could hardly endure life. I suffered from indigestion, loss of appetite, blinding dizzy spells, nervousness, pains in the back, and about every other miserable feeling stomach trouble can cause a person. My heart would palpitate terribly and I could not sleep at night."

"I had suffered in this way for two years and had almost despaired of ever getting well. Since taking Taniae I have gained 15 pounds and I have never felt stronger or better in all my life. In fact, my health seems just perfect and Taniae has won my everlasting praise and gratitude."

INDEPENDENTS NEED REAL SUPPORT OVER WEEK-END AND JULY 4

Three Good Games Scheduled for Saturday and Next Tuesday.

RACES DRAW AT DAWSON

The Connellsville Independents may get a new lease on life if the Connellsville sport loving public gives its whole hearted support on Saturday and on the Fourth of July. Two fine teams have been scheduled for those dates and with a strong outfit which has been assembled under the title of "Connellsville Independents," Coker fans have something to be proud of.

The pride has not been sufficiently shown this season, however. Better support was given a poorer team last year. On Saturday the locals meet the P. J. McDermids of Pittsburgh, a team which ranks on a level if not higher than the P. F. Rileys, who were defeated here last week.

Two in two consecutive games ability to hit and good fielding have won ball games but the crowd has refused to warm up. It is disheartening to the players and the next two games are looked forward to as the turning point of better things.

The Washington Field Club an aggregation known throughout Western Pennsylvania and Ohio will be here for the holiday contests. A game will be played in both morning and afternoon.

The Connellsville Malays won from the Ross All Stars in a game yesterday afternoon. The score was 11-4.

The West Penn and Baltimore & Ohio teams clash at Fayette field this evening.

Chicago lost a double header to Pittsburgh yesterday 6-1 and 7-0. The Blues are still in the second division, however.

Danbar will play Klatrdales at Poplar Grove this evening at 5:30 o'clock.

Lee Fohl, the St. Louis Browns pitcher, does not believe that team work is promoted by a combination of individual brilliance. "All this talk about team work is not true," he maintains. "It sounds well, but no player ever is so valuable to his team as when he is putting forth his best individual effort. If he succeeds his team succeeds with him. Sometimes a ball player's course is governed by circumstances of course. For instance he may be called upon to hunt to advance a runner; but that is as much a part of the game as hitting home runs, and it means no loss to the player's batting average."

BILLIARD SKILL OF JAKE SCHAEFER NOT INHERITED FROM HIS FATHER

Does young Jake Schaefer's skill come by inheritance from his famous father? Could his father have transmitted to him that ability which has made young Jake the world's 182 ballgame billiard champion? These are questions that are being asked by billiard fans everywhere. In the majority of instances, however, the answer to both questions is "yes."

Science, however, in the person of Professor Frederick Starr, anthropologist of the University of Chicago says "No." Schaefer's father was a world champion until 1908. His father died before young Jake took up billiards seriously, so that the latter could not have given young Jake much personal instruction in the art of snaring shot making and other fine points of the game.

Characteristics of Father. Maybe it is imagination or perhaps it is something else, but old billiard fans profess to see revealed in the features of young Jake the characteristics of his father. Fred Starr cannot see them. He asserts that everyone who is an authority on evolution will agree in his statement that the son could inherit no accumulation of billiard skill from his father.

"It is quite possible, however," Professor Starr said, "for the father to transmit to the son those general qualities which would make a good billiard player and those inherited qualities could be developed so that the son also would be a skilled player. Possibly that is what happened in this case."

"A keen eye steady hand and mind quick to take in a situation and course are some of the things that could be transmitted to the son. That, of course, is quite different from saying that billiard experience and skill, as such, could be inherited from the father. The son might or might not be a billiard player according to the development of his qualities. The fact that young Jake grew up in an environment where he would see a great interest taken in billiards would tend to influence him to take up the game and encourage him to develop his skill."

Man of Intelligence. There is no "billiard face" or expression any more than there is an expression peculiar to any other occupation or profession, according to Professor Starr. Showing a picture of Jake Schaefer's father, Professor Starr said, "It would be impossible to tell from this picture that the man was a billiard player. The picture shows a man wide awake, keen and intelligent. If I were given a group of pictures and told that certain of the group were those of billiard players, I could with no attempt thus directed pick out four or five pictures which would include those of the billiard players. But without such a hint it would be impossible to tell an occupation."

Young Jake evidently is a man who has himself under control. He looks intelligent, but as in the case of the father there is nothing that would indicate that he was a billiard player. There are no distinguishing marks. From the picture one can see that he might be a billiard player or anything else that requires control and intelligence.

Pitcher Harry Los who has been wandering around like a ghost or something, finally has located himself with Galveston.

Rube Olding, former Philadelphia Athletic outfielder, signed a contract to manage the Richmond team of the Virginia league.

George Jackson, grand old man that he is, probably is done as a player. For the second time this season his legs have gone wrong.

To make room for Pitcher Phil Bedgood, former Cracker and Pelican of the Chattanooga club released Third Baseman Eddie Stephens.

Bill Edmonson who was about the best second baseman in the Western association last year has been sold by Elkhart to McAllister.

Charles (Dutch) Kester, one of the University of Illinois baseball players, has signed with the Danville True Blue league team.

This speaker is not so worried about his team as are some of his critics. He has a bunch of veterans who will show better as the season advances, says this.

Manager Dick Hoblit of Charlotte announces that he means to carry six pitchers—Mitt Wilson, Rube Wilson, Wright, Walters, Brown and Mas this.

How did your neighbor's last bargain tire turn out

PROBABLY you know at least one car-owner who is always on the look-out for the cheapest tires he can find. He likes to get them by mail or at a sale or at some place where they have big red bargain signs over the door. It would be fine if he could get "the edge" in every tire trade. But the dealer can't afford to let him have it.

Even if a man saw any slight percentage in tire shopping at all—it disappeared when the "Usco" brought the price down. A standard product—and the dealer sells it with pride. A good tire. The dealer has no desire to trade you into a larger profit for himself.

Girl Makes Heroic Effort To Save Companion Fatally Bitten by a Sea Monster

Dr. S. S. Stahl has received from St. Petersburg, Fla., the complete account of the attack by a sea monster, believed to have been a shark or a barracuda, on Miss Dorothy McClatchie, who was fatally bitten while swimming in the bay off that city the afternoon of June 17, also of a movement to secure a Carnegie Hero Commission award for Miss Mary Buhner, her companion, who attempted vainly to get her to shore, a mile distant, before the death claimed the girl.

The story of the attack as published in the St. Petersburg Independent reads:

Miss McClatchie, just 18 years old and recently graduated from the St. Petersburg High School met her death while swimming in the main ship channel in Tampa Bay. She was fearfully slashed and torn by a shark or barracuda or some other inhabitant of the deep. What it was that struck her as she swam, tearing the flesh of her right leg so severely as to open the femoral artery, will never be positively known. There are many theories and many arguments and some persons say that she was killed by a shark. It was a barracuda.

Miss McClatchie and Miss Buhner, both members of the team that represented St. Petersburg High at the state swimming meet in Winter Park and both remarkably fine swimmers, went to the spa about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon for a swim. Though a stiff east wind had kicked up some sea, the girls decided to swim to the buoy about a mile from the head of the recreation pier. Both girls were as much at home in the water as on land from having swum and played water polo so much. The two girls went to the head of the pier and dived off. They swam out through the choppy sea to the buoy and around it and then headed back to the pier. They were close together when Miss McClatchie called out:

"Something has bitten off my foot. Can you hold me up, Mary?"

Miss Buhner gave assistance to the injured girl but said she could not hold her up. But the blood that dyed the water showed that Miss McClatchie had been seriously hurt.

Miss McClatchie was at first able to keep afloat and make an effort to save herself but not for long. Miss Buhner told her to float and take it easy. "I will get you," said Miss Buhner. "Hold on to me and we will make it."

Both girls kept their heads in remarkable fashion. There they were in deep water, a mile from the pier, with the heavy seas rolling and one of them mangled by some unknown monster that might at any moment return and tear one or both to pieces. Miss McClatchie seemed to realize from the first that she was fatally hurt but she never lost courage and was never excited. Miss Buhner and she discussed the situation as calmly as though they had been on land. Facing death in two forms, by attack by a fish or shark and by drowning, Miss Buhner stuck to her chin and for half an hour held her up on the surface and never relaxed for a moment her desperate efforts to get to the pier before Miss McClatchie bled to death.

Miss Buhner swam for a quarter of a mile towing Miss McClatchie who had a hand on her chin's shoulder. Soon the boat that the strikeline girl had on Miss Buhner's shoulder began to relax and Miss Buhner knew that the end was near.

"I am going, Mary; kiss me goodbye," said Miss McClatchie.

Miss Buhner, treading water, lifted the dying girl and kissed her on the lips and then resumed her weary journey toward shore. Miss McClatchie lost consciousness after the kiss and never spoke again. She was towed in by Miss Buhner, who refused to give up the effort to save her best friend.

Miss Buhner said that the "General" on her way into Bayboro from Tampa, passed near them as they struggled in the water. She called and waved her hand but was not seen on account of the seas. The boat went on and left Miss Buhner to struggle alone.

But her predicament had been discovered by George Roe who was on the pier. He had glasses and was watching the girl swimmers. He saw that something was wrong. He sprang into service, an automobile he dashed to the spa and there found Louis Lanzetta, Glen Whitaker and Hohmer LeBaron ready to go out in a motorboat that would tow an aquaplane. He told the boys that swimmers were in trouble and the boys, with Roe in the boat, headed for the head of the pier.

From the time Roe and Willie Moxie saw that the girl swimmers were in trouble until the boat reached them was 20 minutes and Miss Buhner had been holding up Miss McClatchie for at least 10 minutes before she was seen and her calls for help heard. That she was able to hold up the badly wounded girl for half an hour in such a sea is regarded as very remarkable. She could have saved herself at any time by abandoning her companion but that idea never seems to have occurred to her.

When the boat touched the pier in the water Whitaker and Roe jumped into the water and helped Miss Buhner get Miss McClatchie into the boat. Only after her friend was in the boat was Miss Buhner willing to leave the water. She was pulled into the boat almost exhausted. The boys who went to the rescue say that while unconscious Miss McClatchie was alive when taken into the boat but no blood dripped from the wounds. Every bit of blood in her body had drained out in the water.

Many reports have been current regarding the nature of the wound on the young woman's leg. J. W. Wilhelm, funeral director, who embalmed the body, said there was no wound below the knee and that there was apparently only one bite by the fish or shark that struck her. The wound was on the inside of the left leg, from near the thigh almost to the knee. The upper part of the wound was cut clean as though with a knife and in one place the teeth had struck to the bone and into the bone, cutting the main artery at that point. The flesh was badly scorched, Mr. Wilhelm said at the time and also at the time. The teeth marks were close together, hardly more than one-sixteenth of an inch apart. At the time the teeth had cut deep. Mr. Wilhelm said that the fish or whatever it was that struck her evidently had come from below and made one grab.

Mary Buhner and Dorothy McClatchie were chums and were together every day nearly all day. They had planned to be roommates at college next fall and were busy making preparations for the school term. Miss McClatchie came here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClatchie, from Montreal, Can., last fall.

Had a Right to Laugh. Three years ago, when my daughter was good, I went to town with my mother in a dilapidated sleigh. We met another brother who I loved near us and I told him that I would go home with him, as he had a good sleigh and I wanted to make a good impression. We had gone only a short distance when in ascending a hill the sleigh broke down, leaving us full of awkward. A team hitched to a job-dog came behind nearly stopped us. The man in the sled brought us home. My brother, who had been away without accident, did his laugh at me. I guess so.—Chicago Journal.

BEAVERS BUILD GREAT DAM

Engineering Feet Stopped the Flow of the Yakima River and Led to Investigation.

A large number of beavers have excavated an extraordinary engineering feat in the Cascade mountains, 40 miles from here, by building a dam 12 feet high and over a quarter of a mile in length, according to deputy game warden who have been seeking the cause of a reduced flow of water in Yakima river, says an Ellensburg (Wash.) dispatch to the New York World.

Seven beaver houses at the center of the dam are of elephantine proportions, one is 16 feet high and 80 feet across at the bottom. They are unusually spaced, for beaver houses are usually close together. The houses are built on a high ridge of earth, so that the beavers were looking for the long, cold winter—being experienced in the North-west—large quantities of grain and food for food were found in the houses.

In building the great dam the ingenuity of the most intelligent of the animals was taxed, for logs over a foot thick were carefully balanced between two large rocks for the middle or point of greatest pressure of the structure.

Not much water was held in by this log and rock wall, but in freshest season two months hence an enormous amount would be impounded. So great a menace did this huge dam present that the state commissioner of game gave the district game warden permission to destroy the colony. Over 200 beavers of all sizes were trapped and the pelts sold at auction.

Under the protective laws beaver in all parts of the Northwest multiply rapidly, their dams often disturbing the proper flow of water feeding irrigation canals.

NO MORE NOCTURNAL SHAVING

Small Piece of Soap in Each Hot-Water Jug Seemed to Have Disappeared Effect.

Alfred A. Day, the new federal prohibition director for New York, said at a luncheon:

"Prohibition would be more real and genuine if our New York hotel men were like the Vermonters. They are not exactly like him, I'm afraid."

"A Vermont hotel man would be ran in on temperance lines too. Well, this temperance Vermonters saw a waiter of his one Sunday night after the movies had closed, hunting upstairs with a tray full of jugs of hot water."

"The waiter ran a note, and then he asked the waiter, 'What's your name?' 'For heaven's sake,' said the waiter, 'Practically every girl in the house has ordered a jug of shaving water, sir.'"

"Wait a bit, then," said the hotel man. "All I put in the jug of shaving soap in each of the jugs."

"After that nobody seemed to want any more nocturnal shaving in the good Vermonters' hotel."

Made Snafers Laugh. Scientists of Massachusetts believe that the expedition in the western Patagonia results in the discovery of a plesiosaurus. It will clear up the identity of a submarine creature, with a porpoise neck reaching far above the water, which was found dead in the Gulf of Mexico, near Havana, in the summer of 1907.

Cape Cod folks who saw the strange "sea griffin" in the creek believe it was a young plesiosaurus which became frozen in polar ice at some remote period, drifted down the coast in an iceberg and finally brought up in Mill creek.

The bones of the supposed serpent were taken to the United States fisheries station at Woods Hole. Later Cape Cod inquirers were told that the creature was some kind of a shark.

"Whoever heard of a fish having a neck?" said the caustic comment of old snafers.

Where Brides Must Be Cooks. Burgomaster Blinn of New Ulm, a town in Bavaria, has earned a widespread fame by refusing to marry a couple appearing before him according to the Referee England, for the reason definitely indicated in a short speech.

"I will not marry this pair because the bride cannot cook and possesses no knowledge of housekeeping."

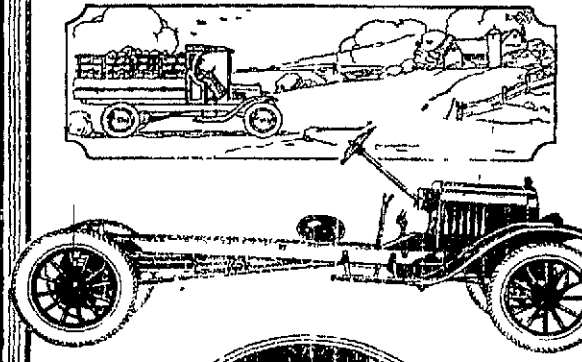

In addition he publicly admonished all eligible maidens to qualify at a school of domestic science, and likewise counselled the bridegroom to the local press a notice to the following effect:

"Being a registered official as from today I refuse to marry any woman who cannot prove to my satisfaction that she can cook and keep house."

Use of Cosmetics in China. An incense burner and for well as vertebrae, chop sticks of cosmetics exist in China. One of the hair, complexion, teeth and finger nails is given careful attention almost universally among Chinese women, and native preparations are generally giving way to imported articles. Highly perfumed toilet water for the hair are imported and are being demanded by many instead of the native compounds. In fact, face cream and powder are giving way to imported articles. Tooth paste is gaining popularity, though the use of tooth brushes has long been established. Ordinary preparations for the finger nails are also in demand. Imported soaps are increasing quantities are rapidly replacing native brands.

SAM JONES IS BEST PITCHER

Sam Jones, of the New York Yankees, is one of the best pitchers in the American League. If not the best, according to a bunch of old timers, whose opinions carry weight. In a recent faning he a couple of old-timers got together and discussed players past and present. They chatted of this one and that one, but finally got down to Jones. "There is one of the best of 'em," said one, "I've seen a lot of them come and go, but none ever had more stuff and none now better what to do with it."

Survey Shows Employees' Representation Is Gaining.

RESULTS MOSTLY FAVORABLE

Some Employees Report Labor Turnover Is Decreased by New System—Improvement Shown in Relations Between Employer and Employee Where Management and Men Have Worked Together With Common Interest in Experiment.

The national industrial conference board, representing a large number of the leading employers' associations in the country, recently announced that a survey just completed shows that an increasing number of firms are establishing some form of employee representation in their plants, and, "the board added, 'with generally favorable results.'"

The tendency is not confined to any one section, it was said, as was shown by an examination of nearly 800 plants. "The present study," said a statement from the board, "was undertaken in April, 1921, to furnish grounds for estimating the value of employee representation in industry on the basis of actual experience."

"The report shows the sharp difference between the plants where representation was forced by war necessities and those developed later by voluntary action of the two parties concerned," says the board. "Most of the 'shop committees' set up by the national war labor board and the shipbuilding adjustment board have ceased to function, the common explanation given being that they were imposed upon the plants by an outside body, usually after a dispute between employer and employee, and that neither side desired their establishment or was willing to give the genuine co-operation necessary for a fair trial of their possibilities."

Importance of Co-operation. "On the other hand, where management and men have worked together with a common interest in the experiment, practically every plant reports an improvement in relations between employer and employee, attributable to the opportunity to come into direct and intimate contact and to learn each other's ideas and difficulties. Increased loyalty has been the result where employees have come to realize that they are working with the management rather than for them. The tendency at first, so far as employees were concerned, was to confine their efforts to the adjustment of complaints and personal grievances, but under intelligent guidance and interest on the part of management, a broader understanding of the questions involved has been developed in the employee representation, who have been able to an increasing degree to make satisfactory adjustment of such minor disputes between foremen and employees."

"Suggestions made by employees with reference to their work may be divided into two main groups—those which would improve working conditions and those which would increase production. The former, such as the installation of a new drinking fountain or the rearrangement of lights are relatively easy to secure. The latter, based on the practical knowledge and experience of employees, will be advanced only when employees have confidence in the fairness of management."

"Where reduction in wages or in working force or a change in working schedules has been necessary, the board's report shows that in plants which had used their works councils as a means of keeping the management, and through them the employees, informed of the business outlook, both for the country as a whole and for their individual concerns, the employees understood the need for such changes and acquiesced with much less dissatisfaction and ill feeling than would otherwise have been shown."

Attitude of Foremen. "One chapter of the report is devoted to the attitude of foremen toward works councils, and another to the effect of councils on relations between foremen and employees. Reports regarding their attitude were received from 440 plants. In 352 of these it was stated that their foremen had been in favor of the plan from its inception. In 72 they had regarded it with disfavor at first, but later had come to see its effectiveness. Only 16 reported continued indifference to the plan. These figures show that the majority fell in with the idea at once. While those whose approval came later were fearful at first that installation of work councils would mean a curtailment of their authority, especially where the council was of the committee type, rather than the industrial democracy type."

"The last part of the report is given over to employees' opinions as to the value of works councils in industry. These show that much depends on the manner of their installation and the sympathetic attitude and co-operation of both management and workers. The importance of continuing interest on the part of employers as well as employees is emphasized. 'Works councils have been found of special value in large organizations where the size of the plant and the number of workers make difficult any degree of personal and friendly contact between management and employees.'"

JURIES ARE ELIMINATED IN SOVIET CRIMINAL CODE

Verdicts Are Found by the Judge and Two Trades Union Assistants.

Soviet Russia's new criminal code provides for assistants to the judge as a substitute for jury trials. "There are no jury trials," said Nicolai V. Krylenko, chairman of the supreme revolutionary tribunal, or the attorney general of Russia. "The people's courts consist of one judge, appointed by the executive committee of the local soviet. Instead of jurors he has two assistants, chosen from a list of trades union men provided by the unions. These are chosen separately for each trial. In more complicated cases six of these assistants are named for the judge."

The people's courts correspond roughly to the police and lower civil courts in the United States. Above them are the revolutionary tribunals. "In the revolutionary tribunals," said Krylenko, "there are only three judges, all appointed by the soviet and without any assistants from the trades unions."

The state police, which has succeeded the Cheka, has power to hold persons for investigation not longer than two months, but cannot inflict any punishment whatsoever. Prisoners may have counsel appointed by the court or may select their own attorneys from the "corporation of lawyers," an association to be formed. To this organization only qualified barristers will be admitted and the government will have some control over it. There is also a court of appeals, in Moscow, which may review any sentence.

State prosecutors are to be permanently appointed, acting similarly to the state's attorneys in the United States.

WORLD'S LARGEST FAMILY HOLDS REUNION IN WEST

Claiming to be the world's largest family, Mrs. Mary Harnett and her 164 descendants recently staged a family reunion at Newhall, Cal. In addition to Mrs. Harnett, who is eighty-nine years old, there were present her nine children, 40 grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. Such a family picnic has probably never been staged elsewhere so far as its numerical makeup is concerned. Mrs. Harnett is shown in the picture.

Owl Causes Trouble. The old granny, having ground evil, or his namesake, has returned to Beacon Hill, Boston, and is causing more trouble. The other night he took up his post in a tree outside the residence of Mrs. Arthur Shurtliff. When Mrs. Shurtliff, attracted by his hooting, looked out the window she spied two figures in the dark making their way up the fire escape. A few moments later in walked her two older boys, covered with dirt and dust. They explained to their frightened mother that they had been up on the roof by the fire escape to watch the owl.

Moved His Family Often. George W. Conrad, who lives near Corydon, Ind., is contemplating moving to another place, and if he does this will make the forty-eighth time he has moved his family. Conrad was born in this country. He is a farmer and is seventy-eight years old. His wife is seventy-six. They have been married 58 years.

Another Maxim. "I've helpful this go around, I've said. I've said you do succeed. I've said you do succeed."

An Unwritten Chapter. "I see where a champion pugilist buys expensive motor cars and maintains a large retinue, but there's one episode in his life I'm still waiting to read about," said the cynical person. "And what is that?" "An account of how he bestowed a nice new tiled restaurant on the 'hot dog' vendor who fed him when he was hungry."

SEAMAN'S 17 WOUNDS ARE SEWED WITH SAIL TWINE

Heroic Efforts of Shipmates Save the Life of Engineer Injured in Explosion.

Heroic efforts by his shipmates who sewed 17 wounds in his abdomen with sail twine and heavy needles and then wrapped his body tightly with a hose tape, saved the life of Boyd O'Neal, an engineer on board the steamship New England, while at sea, according to a report made by Captain William Hind of the United States liner S. S. American.

The captain's own services in promptly answering the distress call of the New England, his taking aboard of the injured man and providing adequate surgical aid also figured largely in preserving O'Neal's life.

Captain Hind, who answered a radio call from the New England, had led aid in taking aboard a man who had been injured in an explosion, told in a letter to the office of his company how the transfer took place shortly after dawn when the American with 1,500 passengers on board was nearing the English coast on her way to Bremen.

The transfer was accomplished and he was carried to Bremen and placed in a hospital there. To give assistance the American made a detour of 180 miles.

O'Neal, who was a veteran of the United States army, was making repairs in the engine room through the bursting of a steam pipe. Several of his mates who went to his assistance were scalded and at one of the bores of O'Neal's right ankle was blown away his right foot was badly injured and he received 17 wounds in the abdomen. Prompt aid through the rough surgery of his shipmates saved O'Neal's life, according to the American's doctors.

Salmon of Pacific Waters Discovered in Eastern Canadian Lake.

A fish has become part of the records of the Canadian government. An entry recently made in the official archives showed that a few weeks ago a spring or quill salmon, known heretofore only in the waters of the Pacific coast, was caught in the Bay of Quinte. It was a male in spawning condition, weighed 3½ pounds and was 33 inches long. Three years ago the department of fisheries planted quill salmon in Lake Ontario. Several million fry were set free. They lost themselves in the great lake. Nothing more was known of them. Whether they perished or thrived, remained in the depths of Lake Ontario or following the migratory habit of their kind found their way to the Atlantic through the St. Lawrence was an enigma. The scheme was a glible gamble. The Bay of Quinte salmon is the first indication that the government has been in the waters of eastern Canada have been enriched with a new game fish.

STANDS PATIENT ON HEAD

Dr. West Has Upside-Down Cure for Malignant Abdominal Organs.

Standing a patient on his head and gently shaking him in the manner in which a wife sometimes treats her husband's trousers has proved an efficacious treatment for malignant abdominal and pelvic organs, according to a paper read before the annual convention of the Eastern Osteopathic association at Atlantic City by Dr. William West, a New York specialist.

Doctor West who is the discoverer of the new "shakedown" treatment, has named it the "oscillatory gravity treatment," and claims to have achieved remarkable results.

FOR FANCY SUITS

Embroidered Woven Serges Are About to Be Put Forward.

Extreme Novelty Chiefly for Skirts
With Plaits and Combined With Plain Material.

In London embroidered woven serges are about to be put forward for fancy fittings and three-piece costumes. These extreme novelties are to be used chiefly for skirts with plaits, and combined with plain material which is sold to match. The embroidery patterns for colored stripes run vertically four inches apart on grounds of navy or black. The patterns are woven of silk threads in four or five colors, combining purple, silver, green, gold, yellow and rust. The pattern itself shows either fancy lace designs or simple geometric effects, the different colors running in stripes, leaving the plain ground to show up the outlines.

For next winter's coatings the steady run of plain velours will be varied with a series of grooved in Jacquard pattern in plain colors. These heavy-weight cloths come not only in the flowered grooves, but in grooved stripes and fancy checks. Browns predominate in this series, the range of Jacquards being fawn, mole, beaver, sedge, cinnamon and gray.

Mixture velours are used as elsewhere, and plain velours with a shadow stripe in contrasting color. The velours collection contains many checks, the most interesting being the very large shaded checks in several degrees of the same color, designed for coatings.

The gabardine series is made interesting by the introduction of striped materials, bands of rich colors on a neutral ground, such combinations as fawn, gray, slate and beaver striped with blue, lemon, gold, poppy and black, each band containing black and two colors.

FILET MESH OF HEAVY CORD

New Lace Which Promises to Be Well
Received, Closely Resembles
Fish Net.

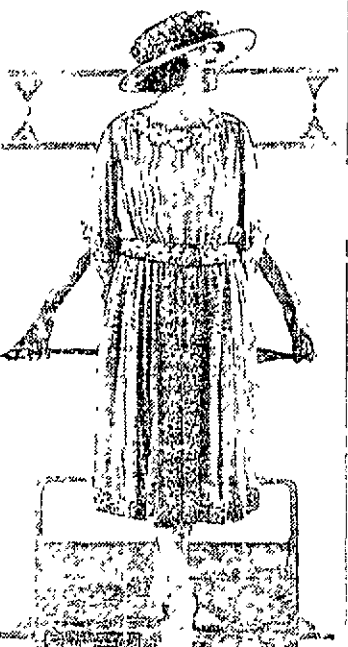

A lace which is new and has all the requisites for finding wide acceptance. It is a file mesh of heavy cord which resembles nothing so much as fish net. A regular diet pattern is woven by hand into this mesh in wool yarns and the result is a most effective founding of bands for afternoon frocks. This file is being shown in both cream and ecru and in all widths. It is particularly sought in skirt widths.

This file, made with candle-wick cotton instead of wool, also is finding a very wide demand for home-shod uses. In twelve to sixteen inch bands it is used for table runners, dresser scarves and similar purposes. Fringe, either in finished widths or hand knotted from candle-wick cord, decorates the ends of these scarves.

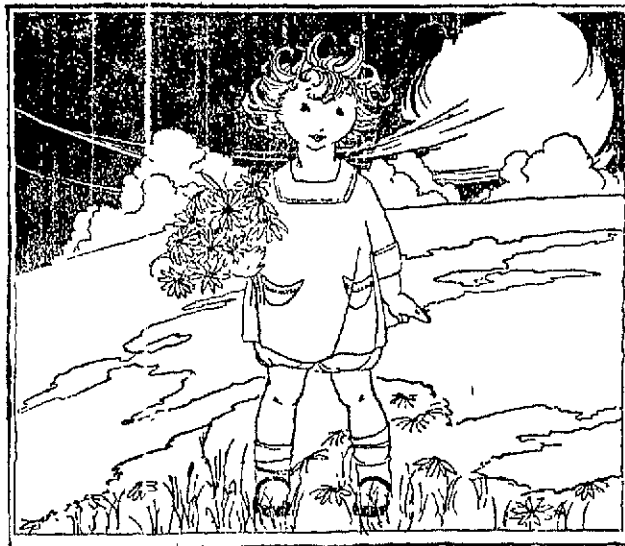

NEW FAN FOR THE EVENING

Two-Yard Tulle Scarf Is the Latest French Wrinkle in Way of an Accessory.

Without a stunning fan an evening gown is as incomplete as would be a rainy day costume without an umbrella. Fans grow more and more gorgeous and the latest French wrinkle is a two-yard tulle scarf, attached to the outer side of a big feather fan—spread open, the huge fan is held in the right hand and the tulle scarf drops down over the skirt in a long loop which is caught up and twisted around the right arm. Or the tulle may be thrown around the shoulders and the fan held in the hand in some graceful position or other. It takes a little more practice to be able to manage fan plus tulle scarf effectively—but the result pays.

IS BEADED IN DAISY DESIGN

When a French voile in rose is beaded in a daisy design it becomes a charming afternoon frock. The model wears a hat of rose straw with clusters of frosted grapes.

STORIES OF GREAT INDIANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

Copyright, 1922 Western Newspaper Union

CHIEF WEATHERFORD—A PAGE OF BLOODY HISTORY

LATE in the summer of 1811 the whole country was agitated by the news of a terrible Indian massacre at Fort Mims, Ala. Only a year before had occurred the slaughter at Fort Dearborn, but compared to the horror at Fort Mims, the Illinois tragedy seemed insignificant. Of a garrison of 275 men, women and children, only 27 escaped alive.

The leader in this massacre was the Creek chief Red Eagle (I translated) commonly known as Weatherford, a half-breed who had liberated the worst qualities of both races.

All but of 5,000 men was put in the field under Gen. Andrew Jackson to punish the Creeks. He made them pay dearly for Fort Mims. At Talladega they lost 300 more. At the Holston they lost 1,000 more.

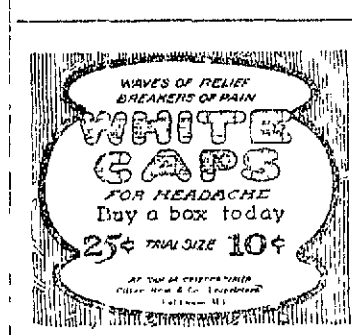

ness on the Alabama river, Weatherford was the last to leave the field. The capture seemed certain. Suddenly he turned his horse to a cliff where there was a sharp drop of 15 feet to the river. The chief galloped to the brink and in one great leap horse and rider dropped into the river. Disappearing beneath the water, then emerging they swam to safety.

After suffering several defeats, the Creeks prepared to make their last stand at Tachopka or the Great Shoalwater Bend of the Tallapoosa river. Here on March 27, 1813, Jackson attacked them. The battle was one of the bloodiest in Indian history. Weatherford lost 400 warriors, the flower of the Creek nation. His power was broken. Soon afterward the Indians sued for peace. One of the conditions imposed by Jackson was that Weatherford should be shackled and delivered to him. Rather than suffer such degradation, the chief announced that he would surrender voluntarily.

A few days later an Indian walked into Jackson's tent. "I am Weatherford," he said. "I desire peace for my people and have come to seek it. I put in your power, do with me as you please."

"I wish to take no advantage of you," replied "Old Hickory." "You may return to your tribe and continue the war. But if you are taken you shall receive no attention."

"You can't afford to refuse me in such terms now," was Weatherford's dignified reply. "I could once influence my warriors to battle, but I can not animate the dead. I ask for peace only for my nation. You will find me the strictest enforcer of obedience to your terms." Weatherford kept his word and until his death March 9, 1821, he held his nation at peace.
